Comments: The archipelago of the San Juan Islands off the northern coast of Washington State has declared itself a GMO free zone and is pursuing natural farming practices to develop short and long term food system self sufficiency. Our organization supports their choice of natural farming and self determination of our local food system practices. We urge you to support similar legislation here in Hawaii. Please support the natural farming efforts in Hawaii as an economic, community -- and survivability - opportunity to do right by the land and the people, today and for tomorrow. We represent the interests of 1300 people.
